

Joinerysoft established in Palmerston North, New Zealand

Based in Palmerston North, Bruce Syder has over 40 years experience in the Joinery industry and has also been a regular user of Joinerysoft's Joinery software (JMS) for the last two years. After two years living and working in the UK, Bruce returns home keen to share his enthusiasm for JMS with New Zealand's joiners and also help support Joinerysoft's existing customer base in the country.

Bruce comments, "I was introduced to Joinerysoft by my employer in the UK who had been using JMS successfully for some time. I found it unbelievably easy to learn and use. Always sceptical of software for custom joinery I found it easy to cost and manufacturer individual pieces of custom joinery." He says, "Returning home to New Zealand I approached Joinerysoft and offered to become their NZ contact. I believe JMS will be an asset for any Joinery Company in New Zealand. I am excited about working with the Joinerysoft team."

Bruce will now be able to provide a local face for Joinerysoft in New Zealand, and be able to reassure joiners that Joinerysoft adapts easily between the UK and New Zealand designs of windows and doors. Differences such as sill angles, weathering rebates, and different timbers can be adjusted quickly and easily ensuring that Joinerysoft is tailored to your specific needs. Being fully customisable there are no UK legacies such as £ or VAT, so the quotes/estimates produced always look correct and professional. Bruce adds, "Joinerysoft is supplied with ready to use templates so you can start using the programme quickly. I plan to be on hand to talk Joiners through the set up process ensuring that Joinerysoft pays its way quickly."
